In the sumward by the Chinese officials for their neglect to do so. Now and again, by way of exumple, rigorous prohibitions are issued in certain districts, and the people have to-bow that a spasmodic fit of virtuous zeal has lately laid hold of the Chihli officials, for the poppy has been sternly proscribed in the north-east part of Chihli, and few of the agriculturists have dured to disobey the proclamation. In Shingking, too, the law against the production of the drug has been invoked, and the crop there is likely to be short also. There is every reason to believe that the Imperial Decree forbidding the cultivation of the poppy might be enforced without much difficulty in every province -save, perhaps, Yunnan, if the officials were not wilfully blind to the scarlet flowers which are so conspicuous a feature in the landscape in numerous provinces. It is Egypt if necessary. pleaded that the Chinese people would to prevent it. This assertion has again and again been proved to be without foundation. in many cases; the higher mandarins possess arbitrary and almost unlimited powers and can at will use them against individuals whom they often need but to suspect in order to condemn. Do the Chinese-officials exercise their authority to suppress the growth of opium in China? We say emphatically not; the official opposition to the drug is confined to a few mandarins, who, like the "Anti-Opium agitators in Eugland, are desirous of posing as philanthis end. What the Chinese Government are really auxious about, however, is to make a large revenue out of opium, whether it be foreign or native. To this end the Peking authorities have managed to draw out the negotiations with Sir THOMAS WADE in reference to the Chefoo Convention to and CHINA, the New TREATY between GER. a wearisome length. They have professed to wish to have that celebrated agreement. ratified, but it seems that they can come to no agreement with the British Minister on the import and lekin duties on opium. The Chinese desire to fix the rate at a point far higher than the British Minister, having regard to the interests of India, can agree to, and so the negotiations hang fire. Whether the Peking officials are animated with a simple desire to add at one swoop a large lump to the rovenne, by squeezing a luxury to the extremest point, or whether they hope thus to so handicap the Indian drug as to render its competition with the native product hopeless we cannot readily determine. But we are certainly not prepared to believe what the anti-opium agitators would fain persuade us, namely, that the Chinese Government only wish to make the tax heavy to renin every Mercantile Office in the Far East and der the drug a probibited luxury, and then by degrees, through legislation, to stamp out the vice altogether.

He said he was on the way to Lam Tai Wan when he saw the deceased's boat lying on the rooks. It was empty, and he searched for the deceased, whose body he found on the hill. Witness corroborated the evidence given by Inspector Swanston.-Inspector Swanston said he was unable to produce any more evidence, but he was not satisfied that death was caused by strangulation. Had it been so, he thought the woman named Wo Asam, in Tank Lane, on the deceased must have been dead long before, as six 6th inst. hours elapsed between the time the man stated he found the deceased and the time the police arrived there. Witnesses he wanted to call had left the colony .- The Coroner pointed out that the medical evidence tended to show that death was caused by strangulation and no poison was found in the deceased's atomach. The evidence had put many disjointed circumstances before them, but nothing definite had been shown, and there was no connected case.
